What's New In Photoshop 2022 (Version 23.1)?

China took another giant step towards becoming the owner of the world's largest economy when it surpassed the US as the world's largest goods trading nation in 2017. Every year, the UN's World Economic Situation and Prospects surveys compile statistics from national statistical agencies that reflect goods and services exports and imports that countries have recorded. The most recent Wesp strategic report, which surveys the economies of the G20 countries that account for about 80 percent of global trade, found that last year China was the biggest goods exporter in the world, with exports of $2.4tn (up 25 percent compared with 2016). US is falling behind China on trade and US trade deficit could jump substantially in 2020, China experts predict Read more Since 2015, China's annual exports have gone up at an average rate of 16.4 percent, while US exports have risen at an average of 6.9 percent over the same period. In 2017, China surpassed the US as the world's largest goods exporter, but a number of factors could lead to a decline in US exports, including the US recovery being slower than economists had predicted. US president Donald Trump is still lobbying hard for a trade deal with China that would rewrite the terms of existing trade deals, and it is unclear whether or not China would be willing to go back to the negotiating table with the US. Last week, Trump's hawkish trade adviser Peter Navarro told Chinese state media that one of the US administration's priorities would be to lift the existing 25 percent tariff on Chinese goods that the US has imposed since January last year. Trump's top economic adviser, Larry Kudlow, has been more optimistic about a possible trade deal. "I think we are close," he said in June. "I know there's a Chinese delegation coming up here shortly. They've said that. If we get to an agreement, I think we'll go in a good direction." The US secretary of state, Mike Pompeo, recently floated the idea of removing tariffs altogether. "If they come to the table and in a bold spirit reach a deal that really benefits American consumers and American workers, I think that would be the most important thing that we could do." On the flip side, there have also been concerns that China could use its massive trade surplus to pressure its
