I am using the fluent nhibernate mapping setup from the example in the nhibernate documentation. For example: var session = Session.OpenSession(); var user = new User { Id = 1 }; user.Id = (int)UserRole.User; session.Save(user); When I save an entity with a map value, it's type is not changed to the mapped type in the database. For example user.Id == 1 in the NHibernate session, but in the database, it has an ID column of type varchar. I want to change the datatype of column, so I'm using the SqlType like in this answer. Here is my model configuration: public class User { public virtual int Id { get; set; } public virtual IList Roles { get; set; } } public class UserRole { public virtual int Id { get; set; } public virtual int UserId { get; set; } public virtual Role Role { get; set; } } public class Role { public virtual int Id { get; set; } public virtual string Name { get; set; } } public class RoleMap : ClassMap { public RoleMap() { Id(x => x.Id);

Over the next five years, the loan program will be available for businesses to apply for with an emphasis on providing opportunities to reach more people and invest in more in-house training and talent development programs. Reynolds' goal is to provide more opportunities to make a difference in the community, he said. D
