It's FIFA's first official esports support title since the launch of FIFA Ultimate Team back in 2012. The addition of FIFA esports brings the total number of EA FIFA games to date to nine: FIFA 11, FIFA 11 Club, FIFA 11 Career, FIFA 12 Ultimate Team, FIFA 12, FIFA 13 Ultimate Team, FIFA 14, FIFA 15 and FIFA 16. FIFA Ultimate Team first saw release in FIFA Ultimate Team and FIFA Ultimate Team Legends in 2011, while the first FIFA esports game was FIFA 13 Ultimate Team Legends, released in 2013. "We looked at all of those esports titles and tried to see what the leagues were like, and who the teams were, and what the championships were like. If we were going to do an esports version of FIFA, we needed to make sure it really matched what the esports community was looking for. "If you look at FIFA 15 and 16, there was a lot of similarity in terms of the FIFA Ultimate Team gameplay and FIFA 17 in terms of creating a full esports version of FIFA, and we built a lot of that for FIFA 18. With FIFA 22, we're building on that, and we really are making a new FIFA, for a new generation, so it needed to be something really new. "It needed to be an experience that would be different from other esports titles, so we got really clear on what we wanted, and worked out the mechanics, the gameplay, the teams, everything,
